Louis Vuitton introduces striking leather lanterns designed by Italian design duo Zanellato/Bortotto.

BY MICHAEL MCCARTHY

The new lanterns from Louis Vuitton, designed by Giorgia Zanellato and Daniele Bortotto, cast a romantic glow.

When the golden hour fades on summer soirees, Louis Vuitton has a new solution from its Objets Nomades collection: dazzling lanterns from the minds of the renowned Italian design team Giorgia Zanellato and Daniele Bortotto. The lanterns, which feature a blown-glass light dome, represent the duo's continued experimentation with leather weaving—this time in a honeycomb-pattern cage. When illuminated with a rechargeable LED light, the pieces, featuring details inspired by Louis Vuitton handbags, cast delicate shadows as they softly illuminate spaces in a romantic glow. The lanterns are crafted in two colors, pistachio and red berry, and come with a carrying strap to allow them to move indoors and outdoors or where the night's festivities eventually roam.
